

We would like to recognize the finders of this meteorite and the other persons who have helped us obtain narratives, stories, photographs, videos and other information about it, by name, in our upcoming report for the journal METEORITICS AND PLANETARY SCIENCES published by the METEORITICAL SOCIETY, and possibly other venues. We would respectfully ask you to provide us with further information. Regardless of its ultimate disposition of the meteorite, we would like to publicly thank and credit all of those involved. Of course, due to space limitations, we cannot guarantee that everything we gather will be published, but we do seek to provide a fair and balanced picture.

If you can send us videos and photographs, we ask that you send us the first original that was captured by your camera and send it only as an attachment to an email. Unfortunately, any images that have been sent by Facebook, WhatsApp, or Messenger have been significantly degraded. They have been compressed and resolution has been lost.

We look forward to assisting in telling your stories.
